The application of hyperthermia as a radiosensitizer or chemosensitizer has yielded remarkable results for over four decades, and it is currently being successfully utilized in combination with radiotherapy or chemotherapy and or surgery for oncology management. This conference will showcase cutting-edge hyperthermia research, featuring a diverse range of topics including advancements in dedicated equipment for specific sites, nanomolecular probing for thermoresponsive nanogels, and other notable developments.

Renowned scholars and scientists from both national and international arenas will share their insights on innovative approaches for improved hyperthermia delivery. The conference is organized by the Indian Association of Hyperthermic Oncology and Medicine (IAHOM), in collaboration with HCG, Bengaluru, and kidwai memorial institute of oncology, Bengaluru.
